

Naturopathic Medicine As An Alternative Treatment To Cancer

December 18, 2018 -

Toronto, Ontario based Dr. Amauri Wellness Centre has recently issued a public advisory on using Naturopathy as an effective alternative treatment to cancer.

Naturopathy or Naturopathic Medicine is defined as an alternative form of medicine that promotes the use of natural treatments and procedures to speed up the body's natural healing process. It employs an array of practices branded as "natural", "non-invasive" and "self-healing" such as fasting, monitored eating, water therapy, exercise and includes practices such as acupuncture as well as the use of herbal medicines.

Cancer is one of the worst diseases known to mankind. According to cancer.gov, in 2018 alone, there were an estimated 1,735,350 new cases of cancer in the United States and about 609,640 of them will most likely to die. Research also shows that the most common types of cancer that affect the majority of the population are breast cancer, lung and bronchus cancer, prostate cancer, colon and rectum cancer, leukemia and liver cancer to name a few.

There are many types of cancer treatments but two of the most widely used and available procedures are chemotherapy and radiation therapy. While these medical procedures kill and slow down the growth of cancer cells, both treatments are also known to cause adverse side effects on patients.

For many years now, naturopathic physicians believe that Vitamin B17 also known as amygdalin/laetrile is a compound that helps in curing cancer. Vitamin B17 is a naturally occurring agent that is present on raw nuts such as bitter almonds and macadamia nuts. It can also be found on vegetables such as carrots, celery, bean sprouts, mung beans, lima beans, butter beans and seeds such as millet, flax seeds, and buckwheats. In addition, apples, plums, apricots, cherries, and pears are also great sources of Vitamin B17. The use of Vitamin B17 as a treatment for cancer has been a very controversial topic since the 1970s and up until now, traditional medical practitioners disapprove its healing capabilities.

However, numerous independent research proves that Vitamin B17 is a naturopathic medicine for cancer. Since cancer cells are not normal cells, they contain a substance called beta-glucosidase (which is not present on healthy cells). This enzyme "unlocks" cyanide and benzaldehyde in Vitamin B17's molecules. When the beta-glucosidase in a cancer cell unlocks a Vitamin B17's molecule, a toxic reaction is created that specifically targets cancer cells and leaves healthy cells unharmed. However, big pharmaceutical companies aggressively discredit its effectiveness to protect their multi-billion dollar industry.

Vitamin B17's efficacy has been backed-up by success stories from real-life cancer survivors. A simple Google search and article after article will show-up from previous cancer patients whose conditions were either cured and or dramatically improved. A cancer survivor, Dick Hutchinson said, "I was introduced to Vitamin B17 (Amygdalin) and apricot seeds years ago when I was diagnosed with prostate cancer. I was told that a person could chew a few (about 7 apricot seeds a day) for prevention of cancer and a greater number of seeds plus two 500 milligrams tablets of Vitamin B17 for the treatment of existing cancer. I am convinced that this is one of the best ways to prevent or eliminate existing cancer."
